Task 1. Read the text and choose the right answer.

There are as many kinds of careers as there are people. The kind of career you have can affect your life in many ways. For example, it can determine where you live and the friends you make. It can reflect how much education you have and can determine the amount of money you earn. Your career can also affect the way you feel about yourself and the way other people act toward you. By making wise decisions concerning your career, you can help yourself build the life you want. To make wise career decisions and plans, you need as much information as possible. The more you know about yourself and career opportunities, the better you will be at choosing a career. People differ in what they want from a career. Many people dream to have a high salary. Some hope for fame. Others want adventure. Still others want to serve people and make the world a better place. Before you begin to explore career fields, you should determine your values, your interests, and your skills. Most people are happiest in jobs that fit their values, interests, and aptitudes. Each person has many values, which vary in strength. For example, money is the strongest value for some people that is, wealth is more important to them than anything else. Other values include devotion to religion, taking risks, spending time with family, and helping others. People should understand their values before making a career decision. You can develop an understanding of your values by asking yourself what is most important to you and by examining your beliefs. For example, is it important to you to work as a member of a team? Or would you rather work alone? If working alone is important to you, independence is probably one of your primary values.
