Task 1. Read the text and answer the questions.

Many people say that English is a global language. Why do they think so?

People have always thought that they need a global language if they want to speak and understand each other. Global, or world, language is a language that people speak and learn in a lot of countries. It's the mother tongue for many people, many countries teach it at schools. English has more speakers than any other languages in the world. But some other languages are also very popular. For example, French is the traditional language of diplomats, German is the language of science.

But English is really a global language. It is the most important language of the Internet: about 80% of all information there is in English. Many languages borrow words from the English language. English has a very large vocabulary. Besides, it is easy to make new English words. Its grammar is simpler than in some other languages. English poets and writers made English world famous.

But there is one very important question. If so many people want to use English as the global language, what will happen to other languages? Will they die?
